STOCK + GRAIN ASSEMBLY ANNOUNCES FIRST ROUND OF COMMITTED FOOD ARTISANS AND OPENING DATE

High Point, NC (October 5, 2021) – Stock + Grain Assembly, High Point’s new food hall, being developed by Baltimore-based food hall expert CANAdev, is moving closer to completion, lease-up and opening. On the first floor of lead-off building 275 North Elm, Stock + Grain is a cornerstone asset of High Point’s downtown revitalization project, The Outfields.

Stock + Grain is planning a Grand Opening celebration in March 2022 and will host a winter preview with select merchants in January and February 2022. “While we were prepared to open in 2020, delays in logistics of key construction elements due to COVID have shifted our plans. We remain excited for the opening of Stock + Grain and look forward to it being a catalyst in the continued renaissance of downtown High Point,” said CANAdev Principal Mike Morris.

Visitors to the food hall can expect modern furniture with pops of color sourced locally from Davis Furniture and an outdoor patio boasting a bar looking toward Truist Point Stadium. The interior of the food hall offers more than 200 seats for patrons, and the outdoor patio will offer seating for over 100.

CANAdev is also managing the curation of the retail tenants, bringing an array of artisanal vendors and established North Carolina businesses to the food hall, which will house 10 stalls spread out among its 12,000 square feet. Stock + Grain is located at the Elm Street entrance to Truist Point, the site of the future Downtown Festival Plaza.

“We have canvassed the Triad to find the best food & beverage operators and products; and we have listened to the community,” said Morris. “This initial announcement demonstrates our commitment to supporting local, small businesses, while providing them with a platform to successfully participate in the momentum of The Outfields and the growth of downtown High Point.”

The first round of confirmed food artisans include:
